The paper mill of course dominates the main part of town, and the photo was taken from the mill end of the main street. The Camas Hotel is the white, several story building in left center of this right panel of the picture. The Blake feed store is the large, dark-colored building to the right toward the railroad tracks. Several buildings on the left side of the main street burned down later. The photo, now property of Gus Lorenz, was taken by Mr. Goodenough.